Leading by Doing: Digital Transformation for Civic Engagement

Supported by:

Erasmus+ / Youth Exchanges

EU Youth Programme Priority:

Digital Transformation

Topic:

Digital Participation Youth Participation / Skills Development and Volunteering

Youth goals:

Space and Participation for All

In this unique youth exchange in Estonia, young people from five countries discovered how they can make participatory processes work – they were given the chance to create a fictional youth organisation and practise democratic leadership methods while engaging their communities by using innovative technology.

What is Participation for you?

“For me, participation has two sides: engagement and participation. If engagement is professional, and leaders are kind and loving, participants will have a great experience, and will be willing to participate in the future as well. This also happened to me. I had an amazing first engagement experience as a volunteer, so I wanted to continue volunteering.”

Anett Linno PROJECT COORDINATOR

Wow!

Before starting the project planning a survey among 160 youth organisations was conducted, and the project idea was backed by data.
